

IN THE SPECIFICATION:

Please amend page 1, paragraph 1 of the Specification as follows:

The present invention is generally related to data transfer between devices running at different clock rates; and, more particularly, the present invention is related to a data transfer technique that allows to divide or map a buffer device into a plurality of segments for more efficient and reliable execution of data transfer between such devices.